Soliciting Liquor Sales Brings Heavy Penalty

PEFFERLAW MAN
FINED $120 AND
$89.60 COSTS

"You seem to have gone into this business in a large way," said Magistrate W. F. Woodliffe at Newmarket Police Court on Tuesday to Frank Welch of Pefferlaw, charged with canvassing for orders. "There is a great deal of liquor involved in this offence. There will be a conviction. $150 and costs or three months imprisonment. The liquor will be confiscated."

When the costs were found to be $89.60, His Worship reduced the fine to $120, making a total penalty of $209.60.

Further charges of keeping liquor for sale and illegal possession were adjourned one week.

The Mount Albert Telephone Company, represented by Mr. Pearson, pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to file government returns and was fined $25 and costs.

Leslie Gray, an officer on the staff of the Collector of Customs and Excise, Toronto, testified that the accused company was required to file quarterly returns of long distance calls and the returns for the period from July 1st to September 30, which were to be in by November 1st, were not sent until (Continued on Page 4, Col. 6)

LIONS EXPRESS THANKS TO GENEROUS CITIZENS

At this time I wish on behalf of the Newmarket Lions Club to express our sincere thanks to the residents of Newmarket and district who so kindly and generously donated to our Lions' Christmas Basket Fund. We only wish the subscribers could have accompanied these hampers on Christmas eve. To have seen the delight and gratitude on the children's faces would have rendered insignificant the humble thanks of this club.

Through the splendid co-operation of the local papers we have acknowledged the various contributions to the gratifying total of $562 which enabled the committee to take care of 164 children up to 12 years of age in 62 families who would otherwise have had rather a dull Christmas.

Each child received warm articles of clothing such as socks, mitts and sweaters, a sturdy toy, selected according to age, a quantity of candy, nuts and oranges along with such stable articles of food as animal biscuits, peanut butter, corn syrup, cocoa and oatmeal. In spite of the fact that the committee made most of these purchases in October, considerable difficulty was experienced in getting suitable articles this year.

Without the generous contributions made by the business firms and citizens of the community this most commendable work could not be carried on, and so again on behalf of the Newmarket Lions, I thank you.

W. M. COCKBURN, President.

GLAD TO CO-OPERATE WITH RED CROSS

To the Editor:
In reply to references made to myself in a letter published last week, I have always tried to co-operate with organizations having the use of the high school auditorium, and I will continue to do so in the future.

People do not always realize that looking after a large building like the high school, and keeping it so that our citizens, teachers and students may be proud of it, is not an easy task. Preparing for a dance, and tidying up afterward, doesn't make it any easier, but I always try to do my best, and am anxious to give any help I can, particularly to a war organization like the Red Cross.

The "No Smoking" placards were not in place at the last dance because they had been torn down at a previous dance, but the barriers were in place all evening, and no one went upstairs to my knowledge all evening.

Soldiers Granted Use Of High School Rooms

Stationed In Quebec

CANADIAN LEGION PAYS FOR TEACHERS AND CARETAKER

The use of four rooms at the high school for night classes for the soldiers at the local camp was passed by the high school board on Monday night when they met with Lieut. Crutcher, educational officer of the camp, and Capt. Harden, regional field secretary for Military District 2, representing the Canadian Legion.

Lieut. Crutcher explained that there were some 52 correspondence courses available to boys in the army through the Canadian Legion. A great number of the lads whose education had been interrupted by signing up, were taking these courses, and even older men up to 40 were glad of the opportunity to take refresher courses. Last year the scheme was put into effect in the local camp, and 150 of the boys enrolled.

Four teachers from the high school staff offered their services, and the classes were carried on a month under difficult conditions. Then came the meningitis scare and they were discontinued. While the courses were all by correspondence, the teachers were able to clear up points and advise the soldier students, and the atmosphere was good.

REV. GREER AND HARRY LAMBERT ADDRESS COUNCIL

The inaugural meeting of council was held on Monday night with last year's council once more being sworn into office.

Rev. Arthur Greer of the Congregational-Christian Church, who had been requested to represent the church at the service, inquired of the council if they regarded themselves as councillors of a small municipality, or local guardians of democracy.

"The right to choose and to govern was given by God when he breathed into men's nostrils the breath of life, and gave him an active mind and a will of his own," declared Rev. Greer. "Therefore, he who champions democracy champions the way and the will of God, and visa versa. The council is the champion of democracy locally, and it is your duty and privilege to serve others to truly represent the people, and never to exercise your own selfish whims."

Mayor Dales introduced Harry Lambert, the guest speaker of the evening, "who had a few words of wisdom and advice for the council."

Mr. Lambert expressed his thanks for the honor of being chosen to address the inaugural meeting, and wished them good things for the trying days ahead of them. "During '41 you bravely faced the conditions arising out of the war, with but little thanks from the citizens," he commented. "I have (Continued from Page 5, Col. 6)

Accident Prevention Record Set At Davis'

NO LOST TIME ACCIDENT IN THREE YEARS

Occasionally we hear of records being broken especially in the field of sport in which case some runner, swimmer, speedster, etc., has captured the Dominion, and sometimes World title in their effort to become the leader in their chosen field of endeavour.

In these modern times with thousands of industrial, automotive, and power machines in operation, accident prevention methods evolved through the Industrial Accident Prevention Association have taken the lead in reducing to a minimum both severity and frequency accidents, not only in industrial plants, but on the highways, byways, on land, sea, and in the air, and in the home.

In this town the Davis Leather Co. Ltd. has achieved the remarkable record of carrying on without a lost time accident continuously for three years and three months, giving a total of 3,153,000 man hours worked during this time. This firm is the leader in accident prevention in their particular group of industrial activity, and speaks well of the close co-operation between employer and employee.

The possibilities are still open, and the hazards are many for accidents to happen, but if proper thought and precaution are taken the direct result will be that instead of being in hospital or at home broken in body and mind, you will be enjoying the privilege

TINNED GOODS WERE REALLY APPRECIATED

Secretary Alec McIntosh of the Veterans' Soldiers' Comfort Fund, has been in receipt this week of heavy mail from Newmarket boys overseas, stating that they had received their Xmas parcels. Ninety per cent. of the expressions of thanks should be kept by "Mac" as his job of looking after the addresses, etc., is a full-time assignment.

Dear Comrades—

By the time you receive this letter your Christmas will be over, and I hope you all enjoyed yourselves. I have just received two copies of the Express-Herald and one of the Newmarket Era. It is very nice to receive the local papers, as it keeps us in touch with the local news.

According to the Newmarket papers, all the citizens are doing wonderful work in helping to win this war, and it is very encouraging to us boys who are doing our bit to see you folks are doing yours. Keep up the good work.

I notice one article in the Express-Herald about the Aurora boys' helping the Newmarket Citizens' Band. Well, I must say it is good idea, as I know the band has the finest bandmaster in Canada (Mr. R. Moore). I know, as I played under him when the band took first honors at Waterloo four years ago with a record number of points, and second at the Ex. the same year. Mr. Moore has done wonderful work for the boys and he deserves all the encouragement and support he can get, and I sincerely hope the time is not far away when I and the rest of the boys who have joined up can take our place in the band again. I am getting along fine and in the best of health.

White Elephants In The Attic and Cellar

PROCEEDS FROM LIONS EVENT FOR SOLDIERS' SMOKES

Some of the members of the Lions' Club in their attempts to hide Christmas parcels discovered in attics and cellar a number of articles of furniture, clothing and outgrown toys that had been laid away because they were too good to throw out or for sentimental reasons had not been given away. There they lie—white elephants—no matter what their color was or is.

The Lions' Club early in the fall voted to send two monthly shipments of smokes to the Newmarket boys overseas for the Veterans' Club and in the meantime the number on overseas service has practically doubled—from 50 then to nearly 100 to-day. So the Lions decided to stage a "White Elephant Auction Sale" and Freddie Thompson was named as chairman with the following committee: Wes. Osborne, Leo Cull, Chester Best, Tom Doyle and Doc. VanderVoort.

Arrangements have been completed to hold this Auction Sale in the town hall on Friday, January 30, and the proceeds will go entirely to the War Work of the Lions' Club. Already the club has this year donated $200 to the Red Cross, $200 to the Lions British Child War Victims' Fund and $50 to the bombed Sick Children's Hospital of London.

In a week or so you might answer the door to find a harmless Lion on the door step to ask you what useful articles you might have no further use for that someone else might need. In the meantime take an inventory of the premises to see if you have to spare such articles as outgrown clothing, doll or baby carriages, trunks, tools, furniture (large or small), mirrors, lamps, pillows, skates, skills, snowshoes, sewing

EDITORIAL

'42 IN NEWMARKET

The Town Fathers were sworn in at the inaugural meeting on Monday night and the usual nice things were said about members to each other around the table. They pledged themselves to work in the interest of the taxpayer and to Canada's war effort.

The Mayor, as is the usual custom, outlined a program for the year, many items of which we are in accord, while others do not appeal as much in war time. The idea that councillors should be paid so much per meeting and committee meeting is quite reasonable, if the fee is within reason and not abused. These gentlemen take many hours away from their business or professions, and should be compensated. Then again, it might stir up a little more action at nomination time.

That the clerk's office is in a deplorable state, and badly in need of repair, there is no doubt, but whether it would be more advisable to leave this over until war conditions are over, and material and labour more easy of access, is a debatable question. Perhaps now that the water situation is solved the council can argue the pros and cons of this during the winter meetings. The widening of a section of Main Street, which if not carried out during '42 will bring every effort from the Mayor to have Huron Street paved, and divert the business traffic from south Main Street to the betterment of the north end, is absurd. In the first place, with curtailment of road building all over the province and dominion, we doubt that even the Mayor could get this through. A whole-hearted survey of the parking problem by a joint committee appointed from the council and merchants would bring in some worthwhile suggestions.

These questions and others will be discussed at council from time to time, as the work of the new year progresses, and it will be interesting to see the reaction of the different members of the council. However, we are blessed with a group of men who weigh each matter carefully before they swing into action, so we opine that the taxpayer has little to worry about.

A GOOD CONFIDENCE

Out of an apparently unlimited arsenal of armor-plated phrase, Mr. Churchill has once more within a week amassed a bristling array of verbal armaments and staged another of those drives that carry public morale a league toward victory. The scene of operations was Ottawa.

Speaking to a legislature composed of a Senate and a

House of Commons, Mr. Churchill had an audience at once reminiscent of Washington and London. Americans will not miss the symbolism. But Mr. Churchill dwelt on fundamentals:

Canada, sir, occupies a unique position in the British Empire because of its unbreakable ties with Britain and its ever growing friendship and intimate association with the United States.

That position may not be so unique in the future, when all nations have learned to appreciate the extent and depths of their interdependence. But of that future Mr. Churchill had these sober words to say: "We have to win it by our sacrifices. We have not won it yet. The crisis is upon us. The power of the enemy is immense," editorially comments The Christian Science Monitor.

Mr. Churchill outlined three periods. Further losses, and a patience-testing continuation of defensive warfare seem indicated by the Prime Minister's description of the first period. We have still to organize the great resources at our command; we have still to translate them into striking power. Then we may expect recovery of lost territories and invasion of occupied countries. The Libyan campaign already far advanced would seem a foretaste of this second period. The British raid on the Norwegian coast is a portent of it. And then must come "the assault upon the citadels and homelands of the gully Powers." But again the sobering caution: "We must never forget that the power of the enemy and the action of the enemy may at every stage affect our fortunes."

As in all his speeches, Mr. Churchill expressed the grim, staunch confidence, undiluted by any watery optimism, that every warrior for freedom needs. The French Generals, after the fall of France, told French politicians that England's neck would be wrung in three weeks like a chicken's. "Some chicken," remarked Mr. Churchill. "Some neck."

In America, north and south of the unfortified border, the British Prime Minister has been welcomed as the chief representative of that national quality which enabled Britain to hold the fort for freedom until the world-design of Axis aggression ranged other powerful nations in the battle line. Now "Britain is growing stronger every hour. You can feel it." Somehow we all feel stronger when Mr. Churchill speaks.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Get your scrap in the scrape against Hitler.

Used tires are expensive—a gent in Virginia found this out when he stole one. The judge imposed a fine of $100 and two months in jail.

Look through the house and attic now for White Elephants for the Lions.

Local police are deeply concerned over the action of a group of teen-aged girls that come to town from outlying parts. Many of these youngsters are not out of public school. Parents would be well advised to check on the leisure hours of their offsprings.

Read the letters in this issue from Newmarket boys in England, and ask yourself if you have been fair to them. The Soldiers' Comforts and other organizations have been doing their part keeping cigarettes and eats going across. If you do not contribute to any organized group, resolve now to do your part in '42.

Get out the dancing shoes on Friday night for the Red Cross dance at the high school. While it is always a pleasure to see the youngsters enjoy themselves, it is regrettable that more of the oldsters do not put in an appearance. Let's make this dance a real community effort in aid of such a worthy cause.

C.N.R. ISSUES MONTHLY 215,000 PAY CHEQUES

Preparation of payroll cheques is a big task for the Finance Department of the Canadian National Railways. Addressing the Iner Departmental Educational Association, G. S. Cowie, assistant treasurer of the system, pointed out that cheques are issued to upwards of 103,000 employees engaged in all operations of the system, some being issued semi-monthly, others monthly. This requires about 215,000 pay cheques every month amounting to more than 2,500,000 cheques per year. The pay cheque issue includes 5,500 sent out every month to that number of retired employees who are entitled to pension.

The responsibilities of collections, banking and disbursements are carried out by regional organizations in Canada and by offices in the United States and Great Britain. Altogether 2,200 agents remit funds to company bank accounts on account of freight, passenger, express, telegraph, Trans-Canada Air Lines and steamship traffic. To save penalties and to secure discounts many agents have authority to pay bills for special services such as gas, electricity, water, etc., and in some instances special drafts are drawn on the treasurer. The number of general account cheques and drafts issued annually is approximately 660,000.

NIPPON'S SECRET ISLAND BASES

Japan has secretly built naval and air operation bases in the many Pacific Islands that came under her mandate as the result of the 1919 peace treaty, but how pretentious these strongholds are can only be guessed. Visitors have been discouraged.

The Caroline, Palau, Mariana and Marshall Islands have been virtually closed to all non-Japanese tourists. Saipan Island, in the Mariana group, is within a few hours steaming time of the American base at Guam and it was probably from there that heavy attacks were launched against Guam.

Further south there is the island of Yap in the Palu group. This is well placed strategically as a base for raiding surface crafts, or for submarines operating against the traffic between Guam and the Philippines.

In the Carolines there is also a fine harbor at Angaur, while in the Marshall Islands it is practically certain that Japant has been developed into a first-class advance base.

Possession of these islands gives Japan a strong position in the southern Pacific. They virtually dominate American lines of communication with the Philippines, as well as towards Singapore.

TWENTY-FIVE DIFFERENT TYPES OF SOIL IN YORK COUNTY
Survey Likely to Change Values Of Farm Properties, Agricultural Head States
Completion of a two-year survey of the soils in York County has more than 25 types of earth, each suitable for a different crop. This survey was conducted by soil experts of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.
The results of the investigation are graphically shown on a large-scale colored map, with one color for every type of soil. The map also indicates the foodstuffs grown on the land, the fertilizers necessary for maximum production, and deficiencies in minerals, and whether the land will retain moisture.
The results of the research are also filed in the office of W. M. Cockburn of Newmarket, provincial agricultural representative for York County, who claims that the survey will produce a readjustment in farm values, based on the richness of the land.
The study was begun at the request of the York County Council agricultural committee, and was placed under the supervision of Professor G. N. Ruhnke of the soils department of the Agricultural College. The staff of field experts under his direction undertook the examination of thousands of samples.
In many cases, during the early stages of the investigation, farmers were distrustful of the expert who entered their property to analyze the soil, and on some occasions mistook them for Fifth Columnists. When the work of the testers was explained to them, however, they showed fine co-operation, the officials say.
Many other counties in Ontario are carrying out similar surveys, but most are on a smaller scale than that of York County.

Mrs. John Smith's group (Yonge St. sewing circle): Two quilts, two turtle-neck sweaters, five prs. socks, five prs. pyjamas.

New Year's Resolutions
By Golden Glow.

I heard an announcer over the radio the other day talking about some commercial product, and he used the words "Every man worth his salt makes New Year's resolutions," and went on to say of course, that in the coming year he should resolve to use "so-and-so!"
Somehow the expression remained in my mind. "Every man worth his salt makes New Year's resolutions." I wonder if we do. I'm including us women folk in that. If we do not, I suppose it means we are not worth our salt, and that little saying "worth your salt" intrigues me. I wonder where it did originate anyhow. It certainly implies we are not much good in a very definite way. I think I'll have to inquire round and find out where it started, and just what it does imply.

The old one, the answer that the small boy is supposed to have invented when the teacher asked him what salt was that, "salt was the thing that made potatoes taste so flat if you forgot to put it in when you boiled them."

Of course, we are all quite familiar with the scripture "Ye are the salt of the earth," and again in the banquets of "ye olden days" when guests not quite so high in the social register as some others were given seats "below the salt."

Oh I could go on and write a whole article just along this line, but you see I started out on New Year's Resolutions-I'm afraid I'm too easily side-tracked! On there I am again! I want to say something else, and "side-tracked" once again brought another idea into my head, and New Year's Resolutions are out of luck again!

Side-tracked made me think of Winston Churchill's grand reception at Ottawa station yesterday. The mounties had quite a job on their hands rescuing him from his admiring friends, who couldn't resist the urge to get near him, to touch him if possible-but to get near him, and smile back into his cheery, rosy face. No man, except our King, and of course his lovely Queen, has ever been accorded such a reception here in Canada, and a man couldn't be human if he didn't enjoy it, even if it was rather strenuous! We will all be listening to him this (Tuesday) afternoon over the air, or to a re-broadcast later.

Well! Here I am feeling rather meek for allowing myself to be side-tracked this way, but really before I start again on New Year's Resolutions, I really must say something about our weather. It is perfectly wonderful weather, even if we do not get weather reports over the radio any more, for you see weather reports, broadcast may be of service to the enemy, so Canadian and American stations are refraining from telling us what to expect any more.

Wasn't it Mark Twain who said, "Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it!" Well, now we can't even talk about it, till after it has happened. It is typical Canadian winter weather-wait, just forget the day before Christmas! That surely was British Columbia weather, for it poured rain all day long after a day and a night of dense fog! But Christmas day was one of the loveliest days, as regards weather, I ever recall at Christmas, and ever since it has been grand too.

The small folks are enjoying skating in the municipal rink on the pond, and trying out their new ski outfits on every little hill, and their new sleds as well. If we did not have much snow for Christmas it came very soon after, and Saturday evening the ring of the snow-shovel could be heard all around. And what a bit of snow does do to lighted Christmas trees and Christmas decorations! Just the last needed touch!

They say New Year's good resolutions are like pie crust, made to be broken! Well, I'm not saying anything as to that, only that we should concentrate long enough to make a few. It won't hurt us one little bit to check up on last year and see how we kept our resolutions made last New Year's day. No doubt we'll all be "In the Red," and so you see it goes to prove we should try once again, and see if, when we look back on 1942, we can find a vast improvement over last year.

How would it be to just sit down quietly some day soon, and read over King Solomon's Book of Proverbs, and his other Book called Ecclesiastes? It won't do us any harm, and it might easily do us some good! We rush around so hard, so many duties to see to, so many meetings to attend, and so on, that to sit quietly for a while and just concentrate on anything like that like reading a whole Book of scripture for instance, seems like an utter impossibility. But is it? Well, no doubt it all depends on ourselves.

MANY AT FUNERAL OF J. J. JENNINGS
The funeral of John J. Jennings who died at his home at Temperanceville suddenly in his 73rd year was one of the largest attended funerals ever held in this district.
Born on the Isle of Wight, Mr. Jennings came with his parents to Canada when five years of age, settling first at Clearview, near Stayner in the Township of Sunnidale, moving 13 years later to Manitoulin Island. He came to Temperanceville with his family, some 22 years ago, where he has been a successful farmer in King Township.

Forty-eight years ago he married Margaret Coult, of Manitoulin Island, who with three daughters and three sons survive. Mrs. Bert Andrews, Oak Ridge; Mable, R.N., at Toronto General Hospital; Mrs. Alvin Wideman, Markham; Raymond, Temperanceville; Wilbert on the home farm and Wallace, Toronto.

There are also three sisters and one brother, Mrs. Samuel Cole, Cookstown; Mrs. Oliver Runnels, Simcoe, Ont.; Mrs. Albert McTaggart, Vancouver, and Walter Coult of Oregon.

Mr. Jennings was an elder and active worker in Temperanceville United Church and was a member of King City A.F. & A.M. Masonic Lodge. The funeral was conducted by Rev. W. A. Westcott, assisted by Rev. T. R. White, Aurora, and Rev. Garnet W. Lynd, Downsview, former ministers of the family. The Masonic Order also conducted a service at the graveside in Aurora cemetery.
The pallbearers were all neighbors of the deceased, William E. Barker, James Paxton, Victor Bond, George Thompson, George Phillips and Norman Rumble.

IN HARDWARE BUSINESS 60 YEARS, C. L. MACNAB PASSES
Father of John Macnab of Town Laid to Rest
One of Orillia's veteran merchants, C. L. Macnab, died at his home Monday.
In the hardware business in Orillia for over 60 years, he died after a brief illness in his 76th year.
It was on June 14, 1880, that C. L. Macnab first entered the hardware business. Then a lad of 14 years, he entered the employ of Bertram and Millar.
With the exception of a few months in Fenelon Falls and three years in the employ of W. G. Bingham of Orillia, Mr. Macnab remained with Mr. Millar and then in 1892 he and his brother, D. A. Macnab bought out Mr. Bingham and started in business under the name of Macnab Brothers.
In 1919 D. A. Macnab withdrew from the partnership and C. L. Macnab took his two sons, Kenneth and Alan into the business under the name of Macnab and Sons.
In 1929 they moved to their present premises on Mississauga street and have carried on a successful business since that time.
Clarence Leroy Macnab was born in Orillia, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Campbell Macnab. Surviving are two brothers, D. A. Macnab of Orillia and M. R. Macnab of Toronto; one daughter, Mrs. Frank Millard (Marion) of Toronto, and three sons, Kenneth and Alan at home and John of Newmarket.

MISS JANIE BROUGHTON PASSES
Although compelled to lead a retired life during the past three years owing to the weakened condition of her heart, Miss Janie Broughton took an active interest in the promotion of things worth while until about two weeks before her death, when a severe seizure made further activity an impossibility.
Miss Janie Broughton was known to everyone, both present residents of Bradford and those now residing elsewhere, she being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Broughton, who were well known to all in their time, her father being editor and post-master here. For a number of years Miss Broughton resided with her uncle and aunt, the late Rev. G. H. Porter and Mrs. Porter, in Montreal, where she was educated both scholastically and musically. She served as assistant superintendent and taught music in the Methodist College in that city, returning to her home in Bradford about twenty years ago. Since that time she had been engaged, until her health compelled her to retire, in teaching music here and many of the younger piano players in this community will recall the ability and infinite patience with which she gave them instruction. She also was organist for a time in both the Anglican and Presbyterian churches.
Miss Broughton was a member of the United Church and was active in its organizations, serving in various offices most capably. When her health compelled her to lead a much less active life she cheerfully and usefully passed the hours by knitting for Red Cross benefit.
Surviving are her two sisters at home, Misses Vida and Nellie, and two brothers, Harry, at Saint Ste. Marie, and Robert, of Newmarket, who in their sorrow have the sympathy of many friends here.-Bradford Witness.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

The S.S. Christmas supper and entertainment was held last Friday. The new rector, Rev. G. H. Johnson and his family, were present, and a warm welcome was extended to them by every one present. Mr. Johnson took the services in St. Paul's last Sunday, and early in the week commenced a round of visits to the sick of the parish, and the shut-ins.

Anyone wishing to have him visit on account of illness at their home should get in touch with him personally, or phone 240-W.

The envelopes for 1942 have been delayed in delivery, but will be here for next Sunday.

INSPECTORS COMPLIMENT HIGH SCHOOL STAFF

"The completed work in art is of superior quality. This subject is taught in a room well equipped for the purpose. The desks have been carefully designed and are being kept in excellent condition. The supply room adjacent is very convenient for supplies and for storage of completed work."

"A good feature of the science records is the use of diagrams labelled so as to show important observations and conclusions."

"The enrolment at this school is practically the same as that of a year ago. The principal wisely decided to organize the grade IX pupils into four classes, in order that, during the first year of high school, they should have careful direction and supervision."

"The general tone of the school is good. The pupils proceed from room in orderly fashion and without loss of time. They are courteous and appear willing to co-operate with their teachers in the classroom work."

"We were glad to have an opportunity of attending one of the sessions of the morning assembly which is held daily. This assembly is well conducted and forms a good beginning for the work of the day. We have suggested that the program might frequently include a reference to current events."

"The results obtained last year in the upper school departmental examinations were excellent, and are one indication of the effectiveness of the teaching and of the responsive efforts of the pupils."

"We suggested to the principal that he make regular visits to observe the work of the classrooms. By this means the school would continue to benefit from his experience as a teacher."

"We had the pleasure of meeting the chairman and several members of the board, and of discussing with them matters pertaining to the school."

ST. PAUL'S LADIES' AID

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's Church will be held at the home of Mrs. F. H. Hewson, 70 Huron Street East, on Monday afternoon, Jan. 12, at 3 p.m. All ladies of the congregation are invited to attend. Everyone is asked to bring a contribution to be used in buying towels for the Parish Hall.

Weddings

PLAYS WEDDING MUSIC FOR NIECE

The United Church of Gifford, Ont., was the setting of a wedding on December 20, when Kathleen Steele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Steele, became the bride of Private Paul Russell, Irish Regiment, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Russell, Toronto. Rev. J. Burner, Churchville, officiated. Music was played by Bertha Neilly, Newmarket, aunt of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white silk jersey gown and shoulder length veil held with white gardenias. Her bouquet was red roses and baby's breath. She was attended by Mrs. Everett Kneeshaw of Bradford, in pale blue chiffon with matching shoulder veil, and she carried roses and baby's breath. Best man was Everett Kneeshaw, cousin of the bride.

A reception was held at the bride's home, her mother wearing a navy sheer with corsage of roses. Mrs. Russell was in blue crepe with corsage of yellow roses. The couple left for a short honeymoon, the bride travelling in a gray wool dress and gray coat, with pink collar and brown accessories. She wore a pearl necklace, gift of the groom.

WINNIPEG TO BE HOME OF NEWLY-WED COUPLE

Doris A. Stevens Is Bride of Dr. Fred D. H. Clement

Evergreens and "mums" provided the pretty setting for the wedding, December 26, in Knox United Church, Sutton, of Doris Audrey Stevens, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Stevens, River St., and Dr. Fred Delmer Harold Clement, of Aylmer, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Clement, Crampton, Ont. Rev. V. Lorne Stewart performed the ceremony and James Harrison played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of broad satin and silk net in white and a shoulder length veil, and carried roses. Bridesmaid was Miss Wilma Stevens, cousin of the bride, gown in rose taffeta, matching crown hat and a bouquet of yellow roses.

Flower girl was Beverly Joan Lehman, wearing an ice blue taffeta gown, matching poke bonnet, and carrying a nosegay of "mums" and roses. Best man was L. Rossiter, Crampton, and the ushers were Howard Lehman, Newmarket, and William Buckley.

At a reception held in the United Church hall the bride's mother received in a powder blue crepe gown with jacket, matching hat and a corsage of red roses. Assisting her was the groom's mother, wearing a gown of black and turquoise blue crepe, matching hat and a corsage of pink carnations. For her wedding trip to Winnipeg, where she and her husband will reside, the bride wore a mustard crepe ensemble and brown accessories. The groom is a graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, Guelph.

IN MEMORIAM

WHYLE—In loving memory of our dear mother, Annie Graver Whyte, who passed away Dec. 31, 1930.

A beautiful memory of one so dear, We cherish still with love sincere, A day that comes with sad regret, And one that we will never forget. We miss her love, her cheery ways, With her we spent our happiest days; We miss her when we need a friend, On mother we always could depend.

—Lovingly remembered by Margaret and Herbert Whyte.

EPIPHANY

By Golden Glow.

To-day as I write, it is Jan. 6, the Feast of Epiphany, or Old Christmas, one of the major festivals of the Christian Church, and in some countries it is still kept as the day of Christ's birth, although it has been definitely established from old Jewish archives, that were taken to Rome, after the destruction of Jerusalem, that the correct date is Dec. 25.

Our western church since then has always celebrated Dec. 25, and Old Christmas Jan. 6 is celebrated as Epiphany, the manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles in the persons of the Three Wise Men, showing that Christ was to be also the Saviour of the other nations, besides the chosen race, Israel.

How our imaginations are caught by the story told in St. Matthew's Gospel of the three wise men from the east, the Magi, as they are called. We know then also as Kings from the Old Christmas hymn "We Three Kings of Orient Are, bearing gifts we traverse afar, field and fountain, moor and mountain, following yonder star."

The first King, Kaspar, offers gold. "Born a King on Bethlehem plain, gold I bring to crown him again. King forever, ceasing never over us all to reign."

The second king, Melchior, offers frankincense, and the hymn continues: "Frankincense to offer have I, incense owns a deity nigh, while the third king, Balthazar, brings as his gift myrrh! Myrrh is mine its bitter perfume breathes a life of gathering gloom," referring to myrrh as signifying Christ's death and entombment, since myrrh was used by the ancients for embalming.

You see the Three Wise Men were all students of astrology, and what a marvellous thing it is that these three, all from different countries, should thus meet at Bethlehem the night of Christ's birth, led by a star. "The Star," I should say! Some believe that Balthazar, a superb specimen of young manhood, was a negro, while the majority contend he was a brilliant fair-haired youth resembling our own race. Kaspar was the oldest, and is always represented as gray-headed, while Melchior was in the prime of life.

As I said before, all were students of astrology and were held in the highest regard in their own country. They were not only keepers of the sacred things, the learned of the people, the philosophers, and servants of God, but also diviners or astrologers, who studied the stars, and no transaction of importance took place without, or against their advice. So it was natural that they should see the "Star of the East," and were miraculously led to the "place where Christ was born," signifying as I said before that He was to be the Saviour of all nations who accepted Him.

So on Christmas they came to Bethlehem, as it is so beautifully told in the second chapter of St. Matthew. That is one of the most marvellous, comprehensive chapters in the Bible to my mind, for each verse contains a whole story in itself. If you haven't read it very recently, why not refresh your memory? Read how they came to Jerusalem inquiring "Where is He that is born King of the Jews, for we have seen His Star in the East and have come to worship Him."

They were taken to Herod, the King, who was greatly troubled, and who cunningly tried through the Wise Men to find out for himself where the child was to be born. Having inquired of the chief priests and scribes, he ascertained that Christ should be born in Bethlehem of Judea. Herod then sent for the Wise Men and sent them to Bethlehem, saying "Go and search diligently for the young child, and when ye have found him, bring me word again that I may come and worship him also." "But the Wise Men" being warned of God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way.

Then follows that most horrible sequel, which we call "the slaughter of the innocents," and which will be remembered against Herod as long as the world remains. Herod slew all the children of the district from two years old and under, but the Christ child, with Joseph and Mary, was safe in Egypt, whence they had gone, directed by God in a dream to Joseph. The story of the "Holy Innocents," while appalling, is also glorious, and it all surrounds the Epiphany story of the Three Wise Men—the Magi. No wonder Epiphany is held in such high regard in church worship. No wonder we all love the stars, for the love of The Star seems to be grated into our very nature.

The family of the late Mrs. James Albert Rose wish to express their sincere thanks for the expressions of kindness and sympathy during their recent bereavement.

December 18. Letters were written, but no reply was received by the Department.

Mr. Pearson stated that they were short handed and neglected filing the report.

Ernest Young of the Newmarket Military Camp, charged by Constable James Sloss with taking an automobile, the property of W. Harry Bell, from Cedar Street, Newmarket, without the owner's consent, was remanded one week. Bail was set at $1,000.

William Abbs of Ravenshoe, charged by Constable Ronald Watt with careless driving, was fined $10 and costs.

"I was at the corner of Huron Street and the 3rd Concession of East Gwillimbury facing west on the night of December 21," testified Bruce Phillips of Newmarket. "I had come up the third, made a turn west on the town line and stopped at the stop sign. I was on the north side of the road facing west. The accused was coming east, and collided with my car, which was parked off the pavement. $60 damage was done to my car. There were two people with Mr. Abbs. He couldn't believe that he hit me. His car turned over after striking me."

"The point of impact was eight feet south from the north side of the cut off," testified Constable Watt. "The car belonging to accused was on its side completely on the road. The damage done to both cars was almost identical. Abbs said that at least three cars were coming around the bend and blinded him. He had been drinking. His breath smelt of liquor, but he was not intoxicated. He said that he had had a drink earlier in the afternoon."

"There were two other cars coming and one was passing another," said accused. "There was no place for me to go except into Phillips' car. The lights blinded me."

"From the evidence of Phillips, and I believe he is doing his best to tell the truth, it appears to me, that even if there was one car coming there were not two," stated His Worship. "You may have got confused and seen one on the highway. There was ample room for you to pass anyway. When you are unable to see, it is your duty to stop, not to go charging ahead in the dark."

A charge of illegal purchasing beer against John Leduc of Pefferlaw, was dismissed.

Crown Attorney Mathews produced a certificate from the Liquor Control Board showing that a notice prohibiting accused from having or purchasing liquor, was sent to accused July 2, 1941.

Detective Martindale produced slips at court obtained from the head office of the Control Board signed by John Leduc of Pefferlaw. "I have never signed for any beer since I was cut off," said accused. "That's my boy. He's signed up and is in Petawawa now. His name is Jack but he always signs his name John."

Frank Welch stated that he had taken the order from Jack Leduc, and that his father, John Leduc, had never ordered any beer from him.

"The accused is entitled to the benefit of the doubt," ruled His Worship.

Several residents of town, charged by G. W. Curfiss with failing to have dog licenses, were ordered to pay the amount of the license fee plus court costs.

Lowell Widdifield of Cedar Valley, charged with careless driving and driving with license suspended, was remanded one week.

Leslie Sedore of Holland Landing, charged with careless driving and dangerous driving, was remanded one week.

Mike Wernick of North Bay, charged by Constable Ferguson with failing to turn out, was fined $5 and costs.

BOARD OF HEALTH

Town of Newmarket

The Newmarket Board of Health held their last meeting of the year at the clerk's office on Dec. 31, all the members of the board being present: W. J. Patterson, chairman; Dr. L. W. Dales, Mayor; Dr. J. H. Wesley, M.O.H., and N. L. Mathews, K.C., clerk.

The business consisted in the passing of current accounts, the report on the town milk supply, the water situation and the employment of a health nurse. There has been a great improvement of the quality of the milk as delivered to the dairies, and one of the dairies received some very favorable comments from the Board for the very decided improvement in their milk as judged by the bacterial count and the butter fat test.

The unsatisfactory condition of the town water has always been a contentious subject at the Board of Health meetings in the past, but, beyond a verbal report by the Mayor as to the new water supply and the hold up in the completion of the new reservoir, nothing was said.

In the matter of the employment of a health nurse for the town schools, while the initiative in such a venture would be entirely with the Board of Health and her control under the jurisdiction of the M.O.H., there was no action taken. While there was some difference of expression of feeling about the subject, it was dropped into oblivion while we are putting up our biggest efforts in the world war to preserve our present constitution and to keep this democratic country a safe place in which to leave our growing children when "we have crossed the bar."

There was considerable discussion about the number of cases of communicable diseases, and the best means of keeping an effective quarantine in order to prevent the spread of diseases. It was the opinion of the M.O.H. that there can be no effective quarantine without placarding the houses, whereas the Regulations for the Control of Communicable Diseases do not require placarding for some diseases.

During 1941 there were reported German measles 34 cases, ordinary measles 3, scarlet fever 25, mumps 1, whooping cough 6, chicken pox 10, venereal disease 2, undulant fever 3, cerebro-spinal meningitis 1, tuberculosis (kidney) 1.

This summary of communicable diseases has to do with the military camp only in reporting. They have their own doctors, hospitals and isolation huts.

THOMPSON'S BEAUTY SALON

Scrap Materials Are Needed For War Industries-

ECHOES FROM THE SANCTUARY

(This column is dedicated to the task of bringing a little of the church to those who are shut-in. Its main content will be the pith or kernel of one or other of the sermons given on the previous Sunday.)

Have you ever seen the sea? The writer was born but a few short miles from the coast. Often he would cover those few miles between, climb up a two-mile hill, and then stand for a few minutes on the summit, held spellbound by the glorious scene of beauty that spread out before him.

Looking towards the east, he could see, first of all, two miles of verdant Irish hillsides. Stretching farther away, was the azure, blue of the limitless ocean, which came into one of the most perfect little bays in all the world.

Nestling in cozy fashion right in the middle of that bay was an exquisite little village, in which almost every house was white-washed. You can easily imagine this artist's dream of a perfectly white fishing village against the background of the emerald hills, and the foreground of the great, blue sea.

In his boyhood, the preacher used to walk along the coast street to the harbour, with a fishing pole in his hand, freshly cut out of the bush, and adorned with a thin thread and bent pin. In the sleepy little harbour, he would fish with the other boys, until enough of those hungry undergrown fishes had snapped at his crude bait and hook to make an ample and tasty supper. If you had gone to the harbour with him, you would have beheld a sight something like this: the harbour had a narrow inlet from the sea, and then widened out to accommodate its quota of boats. Usually, just three kinds of boats lay at anchor there—a few freight boats, a smaller boat with sails, or a motor for fishing, and a sprinkling of row-boats for pleasure rides. The freight boats would be tied to the docks on your right hand, while in front of you, and to the left would be the fishing smacks and row boats. At the extreme left, you would notice that there was no dock; rather the harbour ended on a bar of sand, and many of the smaller boats were just pulled up on that sand bar, or left secured a few feet out in the water.

Imagine yourself standing in that beautiful scene it is! So quiet, so peaceful, so picturesque, so soothing to jaded nerves, so very restful—but—so USELESS!

Those freight boats should be taking food and linen to needy people across the sea. The sailors who man them are idle, and idleness breeds mischief and discontent, as well as bringing poverty to wife and children. Those fishing smacks should be putting out to sea to bring in their loads of nourishing food; even the row-boats should be at work, keeping their owners employed, and bringing pleasure to young and old as they take their rides over the waves of the bay. You become gripped with the utter uselessness of it all, and feel like crying out the words which Jesus spoke to Peter, "Launch out into the deep."

Do you not think that churches and Christian people often resemble that little harbour scene? when they could be carrying the "Good tidings of a Saviour" all over the world. Some Christians have great possibilities, and resemble the freight steamers. Others have fewer talents, and may be likened to the fishing smacks; they could not help so many people, but they could do what they were supposed to do. Still others are like the little row-boats, so limited in possibilities. But remember, a row-boat is only expected to do a row-boat's work, and idleness of a row-boat will cause it to rot and fall to pieces just as in the case of the freight boat.

Christians, "Launch out into the deep;" Into the deep of Service, and trust. God only expects from you what you CAN do, but He expects that. If you do not work, then like the boats at anchor, you will deteriorate, and "Fall to pieces."

"Launch out into the deep" of God's promises. He has promised to sustain us, to be with us, to comfort us and to redeem us.

"Launch out into the deep" of God's presence. Many of us knock at the Master's door, speak a hurried word of praise and greeting, and then rush away. But He invites us into "The deeps" of communion, and in His presence, the heart is lightened, our love is brightened, and our whole outlook on life becomes sweeter, kinder and healthier.

ARTHUR GREER.

SPEAKER TELLS LADIES OF AIR RAID PRECAUTIONS

demstration work. Mrs. Rogers was followed by Lieut. W. J. Thomson, with the kind permission of Lieut.-Col. R. B. Harkness, B.T.C. No. 23. The following are excerpts from Lieut. Thomson's paper:

The necessity for Air Raid Precautions, arises owing to the war situation, and is largely a matter of Civilian Defense, in co-operation with Military Defense.

The Air Raid Precaution Organization should be under a capable leader appointed or approved by, and working in conjunction with the civic authorities and leaders.

The town should be divided into Air Raid Defense localities under a local leader, whose duty it will be to organize the houses in that section, receive and relay orders from headquarters, and generally put that section into a complete state of readiness for an emergency, should it arise.

P. A. D. Organization. Headquarters. Telephone Exchange, First Aid Posts, Fire Stations, and auxiliary fire posts.

Look-outs, Police.

Too much emphasis cannot be laid upon the fact that there is really nothing to fear, and if we simply imitate the courage of our leaders such as Winston Churchill, and face these apparent dangers, they will be readily dispelled.

Air raids may take the form of bombing, both high explosive, and incendiary, gas spray, and machine gunning.

The psychological effect is very largely accounted for by the noise, suspense, surprise, ignorance and false rumours all tending to produce a state of panic. Knowing that much of our difficulty results from fear states, it is necessary to educate our A. R. P. personnel, to what to expect and how to act, and how to demonstrate that mind is master of matter. Leaders should be chosen because they are responsible, clear thinking, calm and able to inspire confidence and cheerful and ready response in their subordinates. They should know their work thoroughly, do it cheerfully, keep calm and encourage others. The actual number of casualties from bombs is very much smaller than our daily toll of automobile accidents, and we think nothing of those.

In further organization liaison should be made with the Provincial Air Raid authorities, and such other interested organizations as the Red Cross, Fire Departments and Police Departments. Work to be covered is as follows: How to protect buildings against fire, protection of personnel from air raids, prevention and localization of fires, control of incendiary bombs by approved methods (sand and water), maintenance of the vital services, food supply, transportation, communication, repair of damage, and provision of medical attention. Protection of buildings against blast and suction resulting from the explosion of high explosive bombs. Provision of splinter proof and gas proof buildings. Organization of our homes for the prevention of fires from incendiary bombs by the putting in order of our attics, and making them easily accessible, and also constructing safety rooms in the cellars, completely equipped with food, water, radio, heat, and means of exit by door or window. Fire proofing as far as possible our attics, and removal therefrom of fire hazards such as is found in many attics.

Chief Passive Air Defense is the black-out, which must be total and complete, and the A. R. P. personnel will make it their duty to see that all houses and buildings are organized in their locality to extinguish all lights on the given and agreed signal. Windows and places where light might emanate from buildings must be covered with suitable black cloth before raids are expected, and A. R. P. personnel will see that the BLACK OUT is complete.

All external lighting must be subdued, traffic lights properly shaded. Movement may be aided by marking roads, paths, and danger points with white-wash or whitened posts or stones, reflectors or well-screened lights.

All inflammable material should be removed from buildings to a safe place, and important papers, plans, and other documents should be put in a fire-proof place.

The safety spot in the cellar should be equipped with flashlight, axe, pliers, and a bench or table provided for protection from falling debris.

Shut-off valves of water, gas and electricity should be marked and a clear path to them should be maintained.

During a raid, in case of failure of the water supply all bath tubs, pails, wash basins, cans or other vessels should be left full of water, and a plentiful supply of drinking water should be kept in covered receptacles.

Boxes can be used to hold things and as seats in the cellar. During a fire keep outside doors closed to prevent draughts, and if you have to go into a burning room since nomination meeting heard a few express their opinion that an acclamation was not a good thing; they did not speak of the great deal of courage that is yours in being willing to carry on. I am proud of the success you have made of the water situation, and the way you have co-operated with the boy scouts in their salvage campaign. The coming days of '42 will bring with them many things we do not visualize. We are beginning to realize that the shoe is pinching, but we will have to make a greater effort and greater sacrifices. There will be the war loan, war saving stamps and an appeal once more for donations for the war services. It is time to do some plain talking to some people. I do not intend to go into the financial business of the town, but merely say that in looking over the records of the past ten years, I find your carry-over last year at the bank the smallest in that period.

TOWN FATHERS HOLD FIRST MEETING OF YEAR

Reeve Lundy, in thanking Mr. Lambert for addressing the council, said that he had heard unkind words about the acclamation, but that it had been a general thing the province over. "As I stated at nomination, the people are more concerned in the war effort," stated the reeve.

Mayor Dales then congratulated the various members on their return to office, and outlined in brief his program for the year. He regretted that in looking the town over, there were so few of the citizens able to appear before an audience and give an address. He advocated that the council put up a cup for competition for the boy students at the high school. He dwelt on the stirring addresses of Churchill—simple, eloquent words of good English and the inspiration of the English language when it is properly spoken.

"The first part of '42 brings plenty of discouragement," he stated, "but if our armies and our people stand steadfast, I believe the final months will see us driving through to victory."

"I am deeply grateful to council for last year's work, and the splendid co-operation, but we still have our problems. The clerk's office should be attended to, and decent facilities afforded. Then there is the question of widening Main street. I promise you if this isn't attended to this year, I shall do my best to have Huron street paved and take traffic into the north end. I am going to ask during the year, for a resolution to remunerate each councillor for regular meetings and committee meetings. The labourer is worthy of his hire. We should be paid a reasonable and fair amount. We should carry on as normally as possible, and not curtail necessary expenditures. I would recommend to the property committee that as the high school auditorium is not available for local functions, that the town hall be renovated and fitted up as a community centre. Something drastic will have to happen before some in our town get certain ideas of citizenship and forego a lot of sound prejudices for war years. We must look after our health, charity and social problems."

Deputy Vale, the next speaker, declared that he knew the council would work honestly and harmoniously during the year. He thought that all expenditures of money that were not real necessities should be deferred. "We should spend each dollar as if it were our own," he stated. "I believe the ratepayers are being served a lot better than they know. For example, the switch-board at the waterworks. If we did not have this, we would not service the increased number of customers, or could we get the equipment today. The same with the new well; we just beat the gun."

Ald. Evans spoke of the increased consumption of electric power and water, and the increased revenue it was bringing the town. The expenditures had been good business. The way he looked at it, "If we were not criticized we wouldn't be doing anything." The completion of the reservoir was being held up for a few small parts, but everything would be finished shortly. He knew the whole council had the best wishes for the people of Newmarket.

75 square feet of surface is required per person for three hours, and 160 cubic feet of air.

Necessarily, owing to condensation of space, this summary is only a synopsis, and the subject will be treated much more fully as the organization gets under way.

An air raid may be a very intense situation, but in all probability it will be quite short, and most of the difficulty from the nuisance is almost entirely mental, so if we can cultivate a proper mental approach to the situation it need have no fears no difficulties that we cannot overcome with a little work and a cheerful outlook.

The next meeting will be held in the market place of the town on January 13, at 8 p.m., when Mr. Edwards will speak on "The Psychology of Emergencies."

BIBLE AND SEA GAVE BRITAIN GLORY AND CHURCHILL ART

By Percy Ghent

(Contributed)

As a boy, Winston Churchill was proud of his collection of nearly 1,500 toy soldiers. One day when these miniature troops had been arranged in the correct formation of attack—infantry, cavalry, artillery, disposed for the maximum striking power—his father, Lord Randolph Churchill, made a critical inspection of the battle array.

For twenty minutes he studied the scene, then asked Winston if he would like to go into the army. "Yes," was the prompt response; and the lead soldiers turned the current of a great man's life.

Later, in his gripping story, "A Roving Commission," Churchill wrote: "For years I thought my father had discerned in me the qualities of military genius. I was told later that he had only concluded I was not clever enough to go to the bar!" As a matter of fact, Winston himself in his school days had been greatly discouraged about his mental equipment. Except in fencing, in which he had achieved the public school championship, there were no bright spots to speak of. And he was always grateful to the headmaster at Harrow who predicted that he would make his way through life all right.

Ald. Dixon declared he would have liked to have been an absentee from council this year, but he would not see the town put to the expense of another nomination and election. He liked the work, but he didn't like continued acclamations. He thought that every cent should be saved for the citizens so they could put it into the war effort. He was disgusted at the little done about town for war work. He opined that the council had a weary year ahead of them, but "it is up to us to give leadership."

Ald. Higginson was ready to back up all the councillors in their work. He was overjoyed that relief "was going to drop clean out of sight." "Good luck to you all, you'll need it this year," he concluded.

Ald. Frank Bowser was sorry that he could not agree with the deputy and Ald. Dixon. He thought it false economy not to keep up to par. He did not want to be accused of squandering money, but things should be looked over and kept in repair. "A proper heating system in the clerk's office would pay for itself in five years," he declared. "Perhaps you'll get some action on the Main street widening," he promised.

"When I saw so few people at nomination meeting, I decided that the citizens were either very enthusiastic about us or hated us like the plague," said Ald. Spillette. "Economy to my mind is spending money in the proper place, particularly when the Mayor threatens to by-pass us for the north end."

"All my ammunition has been stolen by the other speakers," declared Arleigh Armstrong, the junior member of council, "but I am earnest and anxious to advance any cause for the town's good. He urged the council to impress upon the citizens the urge to salvage all materials that could be used in the war effort as industry in Canada needed it badly."

Several appointments were then made by council which included W. J. Geer to the high school board, Henry Sennett, public library board, W. J. Patterson board of health, Wellington Curtis pound keeper, Robert Hoyt, Fred Simpson and Curtis, fence-viewers; W. W. Osborne, Joseph Brammer and Johnny Gibson, engineers of the fire brigade, and Ald. Higginson to the York County Hospital Board.

"a confidence for which I could see no foundation."

A Student of English

It was the intricacies of Latin and Greek, so perplexing to young Churchill, that made him turn to the study of English with redoubled zeal. "Thus I got into my bones the essential structure of the ordinary English sentence—which is a noble thing." It is a noble thing and how nobly Churchill can use English has been demonstrated once again by his heartening and inspiring talks from Washington and Ottawa. Yet, you will search in vain through the Washington or Ottawa speeches; through any of his speeches, for flowery phrases or fancy flights of oratory. They are eloquent indeed, but it is the eloquence of simple words backed by profound faith; the eloquence of "plain" English of which the Bible, Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, the finest passages and immortal lyrics of Shakespeare, or Dickens' Christmas Carol are examples, and we believe, are also its inspiration. More than once Churchill has borrowed the phrases of Psalmist or Prophet in his calls of sacrifice and courage which are the paths to victory. Courage, the kind Churchill means, is undismayed by reverses and strives but the harder for the triumph that is sure to come. Was it not impressive, this gallant British leader quoting in the American Senate Chamber: "Ye shall not be afraid of evil tidings; his heart is fixed, trusting in the Lord."

Churchill's "Style" It is true that a halo glows about the head of Winston Churchill as the brilliant leader of the Empire through fateful years; and every word of his finds eager ears. It is equally true that English-speaking peoples, no matter in which corner of the globe they live, have an instinctive feeling for good craftsmanship in English; that quality we identify as "style." Churchill has that quality, and we believe many of his speeches and writings will find a place in permanent English literature on their own intrinsic merit. What is the secret of this style, and why is it recognized, instinctively, by ordinary men and women who make no claim to literary or critical ability?

Lay aside for a moment all thought of the Authorized Version of the Bible as the inspired Word of God, and consider it as literature. Consider it for instance, in the thought of Charles Morgan, a British novelist and essayist who contributed a penetrating article on Creative Imagination to the Queen's Book of the Red Cross, in 1939. Morgan's article was taken from a lecture he delivered to students at the University of Paris in the winter of 1936; when he was telling young men and women of France about the differences in the French and English translations of the Bible.

The Bible and The Sea Said Morgan: "I believe that there are few Frenchmen who will not agree with me that the influence of their translation of the Bible on the language and thought of France has been, and still is, less than the influence of the Authorized Version on the language and thought of England. The reason is that the Authorized Version of our Bible is, in the matter of style, the outstanding miracle of our literature. It is said to have been composed by a committee appointed by King James I.; if it is true, it is the only service to art ever done by an English committee, and its moral teaching are all contained in the French Bible; but ours is a supreme masterpiece of style, the standard of all our literature." (Continued on Page 8, Col. 7.)

Lac Beauport, Quebec, Ski Paradise

"Ski to keep fit" has become something of a wartime slogan in the ranks of Canadian and American sports enthusiasts, many of whom are combining this timely impulse with the joys of unbounded ski sport on the hills of Lac Beauport, nine miles from Quebec City, or in the Ancient Capital itself where facilities for skiing, skating, tobogganing, sleigh riding and snow-shoeing are all contributing to the joys of Quebec's winter season.

Accessible by heated bus from the Chateau Frontenac, popular headquarters for American and Canadian visitors, the gleaming "snow-bowl" with its facilities for every type of ski sport, has lately acquired front page prominence in the North American ski world. And this year, with skiing featuring so prominently in military manoeuvres, as well as in civilian sport life, Lac Beauport is expecting more ski action on its hills than ever before. Briefly, the Lac Beauport layout offers the following attractions: Twin downhill and slalom runs that sweep 2,200 feet down the slopes of Mont Saint Castin; a 4,000-foot downhill and 1,000-foot slalom on neighboring Mont Tourbillon; a professional ski jump, two up-to-date ski-tows, an attractive new chalet, and the 8-mile Sky Line Trail. These features combined with slopes and trails of all shapes and sizes, and snow whose quantity is matched only by its powdery quality, combine to produce a matchless ski setting for beginners and experts alike.

Interest in Lac Beauport and Quebec has been further kindled this year by the publication of "Parallel Skiing", a 96-page treatise by E. Fritz Loosli, celebrated instructor of the Chateau Frontenac Ski Hawk School, whose parallel technique is concisely presented in word and illustration. The Swiss-Canadian ski maestro, who according to many American and Canadian ski aspirants, has "taken the drudgery out of ski instruction," has achieved remarkable results with his parallel methods and his school has a large and enthusiastic following.

The importance of Quebec and Lac Beauport in the North American ski picture is further reflected in the variety of all-expense tours being operated this winter by the Canadian Pacific Railway between Boston, New York, Detroit, Toronto and Quebec City, including generous stopovers at the Chateau Frontenac. Neither do American visitors overlook the fact that their money is worth 10 per cent more in Canada and that their tourist dollars contribute to a common cause.

Keeping fit to win the war is sound advice, and the favorite prescription of hundreds of Americans and Canadians for attaining this fitness is now being written in ski tracks on the snows of Lac Beauport. Illustrations show Fritz Loosli in action; a glimpse of the run on Mont Saint Castin and skiers in full enjoyment of the sport.

Sewing for civilian defence: Quilts, 131; dresses, 57; nightgowns, 7; flannelette knickers, 15 prs.; baby's gowns, 12; slippers, 4; booties, 2 prs.; women's slacks, 10 prs.; women's blouses, 20; layettes, six which included 192 pieces of knitting and sewing; safety pin, 144 doz.

Hospital sewing: men's pyjamas, 22 prs.; dressing-gowns, 10; handkerchiefs, 130; ward slippers, 20 prs. (incomplete).

At the annual meeting of the North Gwillimbury branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society held on December 10, 1941, reports were received from the following: Secretary, Miss R. VanNorman; treasurer, Mrs. P. Mahoney; auditor, Messrs. W. Vail and F. Peel; women's work convenor, Mrs. W. R. Fisher; entertainment, Mr. Wm. Davison; salvage, Mr. G. White; campaign, Mr. P. Mahoney; overseas Christmas boxes, Mrs. C. Grant; St. John's Ambulance First Aid course, Miss E. Gilroy; Junior Red Cross, Miss R. VanNorman.

In order to provide for the overseas Christmas boxes, a sum of $139 had been raised at special events.

The president, Mrs. Vail, thanked the public and the executive for their splendid co-operation during the past year; the interest shown in the work of the Red Cross now being most gratifying.

The entire 1941 executive was re-elected for 1942: Hon. presidents, Reeve MacMillan, Rev. Mr. Moffat, Rev. Mr. Serrick, Rev. Mr. Lapp, Messrs. Wm. Marritt, J. Hopkins, Robt. Davidson; president, Mrs. Wm. Vail; vice-presidents, Mrs. C. Hodgins, Mrs. F. Johnston, Mrs. Whittaker; secretary, Miss R. VanNorman; corresponding secretary, Miss E. Morton; treasurer, Mrs. P. Mahoney; work convenor, Mrs. W. R. Fisher; finance and entertainment, Mr. Wm. Davison, Mr. C. Grant, Mr. Wm. Davison (assistant); campaign, Mr. P. Mahoney; salvage, Mr. Wm. White; transportation, Mr. Wm. Purdy; auditors, Messrs. Peel and Vail; field comforts com., newspapers and cigarettes, Mr. P. Mahoney; boxes, Mrs. Grant; letters, Mr. Wm. Marritt.

We regret losing by change of residence two active members of the executive, Miss Stiles, now in Midland, and Mr. Shortreed, now in Pickering.

It was decided at this meeting that $50 should be sent from this branch to the Red Cross fund for Russian relief, and that two electric sewing machines should be purchased for the work room. Definite dates, the last Wednesday and Thursday of each month, were set as work days in the Township Hall at Belhaven, the next meetings to be on Jan. 28 and 29.

It is gratifying to note that several people desire to purchase the work room equipment consisting of sewing machines, buttonhole attachment and pinning shears when the Red Cross has no further use for them.

"Daylight Saving" Can anyone explain to me why daylight saving there should be? Why should we rise in dark of night and work by artificial light? While in the country all around our friends are wrapped in sleep profound. And in the country when I go to any meeting or to sew for me, the afternoon's half gone, while their's is only started on.

In summer, by the clock it's night, although outside it's broad daylight. And though to bed you ought to go, you never do, you know, and so, when feel you're Doubtful Compliment The little German boy was playing in the mud, building things with it, when the Nazi officer passed by.

"What are you building, my boy?" asked the officer, patting the lad on the head.

"Oh, I'm building the Reichstag," said the little boy, "don't you see the building and the soldiers on guard?"

"Yes, indeed," said the officer, "but where is our beloved Fuehrer?"

"Oh, I didn't have enough mud to make him," said the little boy.

CANADA'S WAR EFFORT

Dec. 26, 1941 - Jan. 2, 1942.

Told in Summary

1. Rt. Hon. W. S. Churchill, Prime Minister of Great Britain makes three-day

Addressing members of the House of Commons, he foresees three main phases in the war: (a) Period of consolidation, combination and final preparation; (b) Period of liberation during which we must look forward to recovery of lost territories; (c) Assault upon citadel homelands of guilty parties. Referred to Canada's contribution to Imperial war effort as "magnificent."

Mr. Churchill was sworn in a member of the Canadian Privy Council and attended a meeting of the War Cabinet. Also visited Up lands flying station near Ottawa first service flying training school constructed under British Commonwealth plan.

cheated nor has your rest been half completed. If in the country you abide, and venture forth at eventide, your evening has slipped quite away, while country folk begin to play.

In summer time too, daylight saving is quite enough to set you having. You cannot work your garden ground for dew lies thickly all around. Your berry bushes soaking lie and so, you have to pass them by; and you are cross as cross can be, because you might as well, you see, have slept another nice long hour, and then, to work with weed or flower.

I wish, and I am not hard hearted, that he, who daylight saving started, lived half in country, half in town, and he'd admit with sigh and frown, that he had made a boomerang which came back at him with a whang. But anyway, about the light—we use it morn instead of night, so once again, I beg, ah me! Will some one tell the WHY'S to me?

NEWS FROM KING CITY AND DISTRICT

Pte. Floyd Burger of Nova Scotia with his wife, Eleanor Berger of Barrie, spent New Year's day with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wellesley.

Mrs. Wells McDonald spent a few days during holiday season with her mother, Mrs. Edwards of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Thorpe of Wick, Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe, Sr., of Bradford, were New Year's guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Riddell and Donald.

Pte. Garnet Ash of Toronto, and Mr. Leo Cull of Newmarket collided motor cars on fourth of King during a heavy mist one evening last week. It was impossible for safe driving, they stated, as the fog was so dense. Neither of the drivers was injured. Miss Bertha Ferguson, occupant of one of the cars, sustained injuries and was attended by Dr. Devins of Aurora.

Miss June Brown fell on the icy sidewalk in front of Mustards store hurting her hip quite badly. She had to be driven home and has since been confined to the house.

Miss Marian Kelley, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kelley, finished off her Christmas holidays in a most unfortunate manner. She had just returned from a pleasant day in Toronto last Saturday, and was engaged in her favourite pastime, that of skating on the wide expanses of ice fields near the house. She fell and the damage was done—a broken left arm. Going to Aurora she was administered treatment by Dr. Boulding.

Dr. S. W. Armitage and Mrs. Armitage are enjoying the company of their two sons, Seaman Harry of Winnipeg, and Sergt. George of R.C.A.F.

Miss Phyllis Carles of Toronto has also been a holiday guest.

$170 was realized for W.I. general work.

Community prayer meetings are being held all during this week, at King and Schomberg. Invitations have been extended to all township churches to attend services at either point, or at Aurora.

The funeral of the late John Jennings of Temperanceville, held on Saturday, Jan. 3, in the United Church was one of the largest of that district. Rev. W. A. Wescott, the local minister; Rev. G. S. Lynd and Rev. T. R. White, former ministers, were in charge. A very large number of floral tributes from family members, friends, the church and local bodies proved the affection and esteem held for deceased. Mr. Jennings, ill only a matter of hours, passed away at one o'clock a.m. on New Year's morn. at the age of 73. He was a man of very fine character and an asset to the communities in which he had lived.

Surviving are his wife, three sons, Ray, Wilbert and Wallace; three daughters, Mrs. Bert Andrews, Mrs. Alvin Wideman and Miss Mabel Jennings. There are 11 grandchildren.

The funeral of the late George Howard of King was held from All Saints' Church on Tuesday, Jan. 6. Mr. Howard passed away on Sunday in York County hospital from pneumonia at the age of 73. He was born in England, coming to Canada in 1908 and spending a year in Vaughan Township. The following year he removed to King Township where he lived the most of 32 years in King village. Mrs. Howard predeceased him four years ago. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Ernest Cummins of King; Mrs. Oliver Diceman of Maple; one son, Bert Howard, R.C.O.C., England; sixteen grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Deceased was a faithful member of All Saints' Church, rarely missing a service as choir member. He was a member of 1824 Orange lodge, and for 15 years a former employee of the C.N.R.

On Sunday, Jan. 4, Miss Elizabeth Wighton Gellatly of Eversley passed away after a lingering illness, in her 79th year. She was the daughter of the late Peter Gellatly and was born at Eversley, where she resided all her life. She was of a quiet, refined nature.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Marshall, and Miss Margaret Gellatly. All three sisters latterly made their home together. The funeral was held from the residence on Tuesday, Jan. 6. Rev. Harold Anderson officiated, with interment in King Cemetery.

The third burial in King cemetery on January 6, was that of the late George Atkinson, 72 years, farmer, on lot 19, con. 9, King Township, who passed away on Sunday, January 4, after an illness of some weeks. The fact that John Gould, 74, of Schomberg, died as a result of an accident on Mr. Atkinson's farm a few weeks ago, the shock was very hard on Mr. Atkinson's none too good health. Deceased was the tenth of the eleven children of the late Robert and Sarah Atkinson of West King and had lived all his life in King Township as a farmer. He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Schomberg. Surviving are his wife, Katharine Sutherland; two daughters, Gertrude at home, and Mrs. Ella Stewart of Nobleton, and one grandson. One brother, John Atkinson of ninth line, is the only remaining member of his father's family.

The funeral was held on Jan. 6 from the residence, Rev. Mr. Cranston of Tottenham conducting with burial in King cemetery.

Rev. John Galloway has vacated the pulpit of the Baptist circuit and is engaged in war industry. Mr. Galloway saw active service during the years of the great war. He was actively interested in the victory loan campaign. His deep concern for the present conflict led him to conscientiously change occupation for the "duration." church circles wish him success and look forward to his return to active ministry. Mr. and Mrs. Galloway will continue to reside in King, and in that we are all very happy. They will move into Dr. Gordon's new house by the end of January.

Rev. Carmichael occupied the Presbyterian pulpit for the last couple of Sundays during the holiday absence of Mr. Atkinson.

Nobleton United Y.P.U. were guests of Lasky Union last week. Mrs. Murray Irwin was in charge of the program, assisted by Gladys Irwin and Jean Hill.

Lasky W. I. eueches begin on Friday, Jan. 9, in Institute Hall. Proceeds for Red Cross work. The series will continue bi-weekly for some time.

Pte. Jack Crossley has visited his grandmother recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Archibald moved to Toronto on January 1. Mrs. Lorna Stone and family moved into the cottage lately occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Thompson. The latter have removed to their new home at Kinghorn.

Local schools are attended by normal school students in apprentice week.

Mr. and Mrs. Farr of Nashville were New Year's visitors of her sister, Mrs. Len Robb.

King City Women's Institute will meet at Mrs. Wells McDonald's on Jan. 13.

The annual W.I. dance held on New Year's Eve at Nobleton Community Hall, was attended by 450 from Toronto and all sections of the country. Already an institution, the attendance increases each year. The midnight frolic and favours interested the crowd. Lunch was served to all.

"Paw?"
"Now what?"
"Why didn't Noah swat both flies when he had such a good chance?"
"Go to bed!"

The restaurant advertised rapid service, but did not give it. A patron gave an order, waited patiently, and fell asleep. He awoke to hear the waitress's voice.

"Did you order this sundae?"
"Good heavens!" exclaimed the customer in dismay. "I came in here last Monday!"

FUNNY THINGS HAPPEN TO BRIGHTEN DRAB LIVES OF BRITISHERS IN WARTIME

Here is another bright letter from the cheery little English woman who has brought home to our readers just how ordinary every-day folks are standing up to the unaccustomed privations of war.

(By MARGARET BUTCHER)

READING, England—Well, well! Life has taken another new turn for me. This time it is fresh office premises. Every morning I have to cycle something over three miles to work and, of course, back again at night. Even now it is a pretty chilly business; what it will be like in the winter I don't know. As the song has it, I "don't think about that." At least, I try not to.

This office is right out in the country, and the journey is really a very lovely one: through typical English scenery. The road runs up hill and down, through little woods, past small, neat fields—believe it or not—Tudor cottages with thatched roofs. I do not suppose any part of it has changed greatly in the past four centuries.

On fine mornings and evenings I run mad and become beasts. I pedal along in a kind of daze, never becoming quite accustomed to the beauty of it all. On dark mornings and evenings in the near future, I shall probably do it in a daze of a totally different kind. Meanwhile, I am rigorously gnawing raw carrots—which my doctor friend tells me are quite good for night-blindness. In addition, I have bought a new lamp and sewn a large white patch of shiny cloth over my back. And what more, I ask you, can a body do?

Now I just have to hope for the best. Up to the time of going to press nothing unfortunate has happened; I have not yet hurled over hedges or into ditches. I have only caught a cold and lost my voice. And how maddening other people's arguments are when one has no voice! Never, never have I thought of so many smart comebacks—on that is how it feels. I can only writhe and whisper, and nobody takes the slightest notice.

A Spot of Bother

The bicycle question caused a spot of bother at first. It is a solemn thought but it must be twenty years since I rode a bicycle. Then, quite recently, a friend visited a neighboring town, bought one and brought it along as a gift. I was delighted. I had never been astride a runaway steam-roller, but I fancy the sensation must be similar. "Nonsense!" said the donor briskly. "It's just because you aren't used to it. You must persevere, that's all."

"Perhaps it is rather on the big side," I ventured timidly, but she would have none of that. "The man in the shop," she said, "assures me that it is the smallest size they make for women."

So I went on wobbling around corners and panting up hills, with exhibitions of dismounting which suggested falling over a five-bar gate. I began to have bad dreams about that bicycle. Other friends, less biased, perhaps, predicted an unpleasant end for me. Anxious eyes watched my progress as the steam-roller lurched up the avenue. I developed a passionate dislike of the awkward person who first invented that saying about looking a gift horse in the mouth; and every time I mewed a feeble complaint I felt guilty of bad manners.

At length messages began to pass between me and the man-in-the-shop, but he had no helpful suggestion to offer for awhile. I am quite sure that he visualized me as a middle-aged crank—and I can't blame him.

Presently he sent word to say that he was expecting a consignment of school-girls' cycles, "if the lady would care to come along and try one"; but it was clear that he didn't think much of the idea. All the same, if a middle-aged crank cared to waste her time

Quite Simple

I hopped into the train and went along. I explained who I was and the manager was fetched from some dim lair at the back of the shop. He took one look at me, halted, lifted his eyebrows and remarked in an enlightening tone: "Oh, I SEE!"

With those three simple words the mists between us were dispelled. The steam-roller went back into stock, and I now whisk around on a machine designed (I suspect) for a young person of about thirteen. It is quite simple, of course. Nobody had bothered to tell him that I am not quite five feet in height!

I wonder where we should be by now if we could not find all these foolish things to laugh over? All the same, realization is always at the back of our minds. We just have to keep sane—knowing all the while that here, on this continent of ours, people are living—and dying—in a state of horror such as the world has never before seen. A sort of red shutter comes down over the brain if one ponders that for long. Maybe this red shutter will come over many more human brains before much time has passed. Folk at greater and greater distances from these dreadful scenes will get that sudden, sharp consciousness of fact which we call realization. Then what will happen? I do not know; nobody knows. It is not possible, in these violent times, to forecast human reactions. One never can tell exactly what angry, desperate or inspired people will do.

Were All Wrong

One thing I can tell you though. I remember, about ten years ago, hearing a group of clever men discussing what would happen if ever big air-raids came. It seemed absolutely convincing at the time—but those men were all wrong. People have not reacted according to the rules of conduct laid down that night—thank heaven! They have been kind and brave, most of them, even in the midst of unimaginable terrors; they have thought of others, and not of themselves alone. They have not

Garden Going On

During the past fortnight there have been goings-on in our garden here. Every morning a couple of men turned up on bicycles, and now there is a little air-raid shelter gouged out in the path near the coal-shed. I am very glad to see it, though I am wondering a trifle vaguely how we shall negotiate a four-foot step into the depths. Something certainly ought to be done about that. I can, with a slight effort, imagine the landlady and me plunging into it, but the real problem of the occasion will arise when we have to get out.

You may say, in any airy fashion: "What about a couple of boxes?" But boxes, nowadays, are practically extinct. I am trying to get hold of one for my coal, but the grocer, when I ask him, looks at me as if I had requested him to procure a Chippendale suite for me. "I'll do what I can," he remarks, but without that hopeful note I expected. It is in things like this that the shortage hits us. We are not short of essential foods; we have clothes enough for any sensible person in wartime; but when it comes to boxes, hair-grips, packets of pins and what not—that's another matter, believe me.

There has also been a sinister disappearance of gum-boots (rubbers). I have tried nine shops, only to be looked at blankly. Perhaps it is because I am what the store-keepers tactfully describe as "an awkward size." (But I really do not believe that I am an awkward size in hair-grips. The whole thing is very difficult.) I have compromised by purchasing a water-proof bicycling cape and a long pair of leggings to go over trousers; so when I set out in the winter I shall be a spectacle to brighten the lives of the neighbors, bless them. The whole thing, I fancy, will be excitingly suggestive of a Polar expedition. Several people have already expressed an intention of getting up early in order to have a look. It should be

MOVIES

FRIDAY & SATURDAY, JAN. 9-10
"Under Fiesta Stars" and
"Hit The Road"

"Under Fiesta Stars," a new Gene Autry musical western, is scheduled to go into the Strand Theatre for a run of two days starting Friday. Republic has held to its customary standards for the Autrys in the matter of plot, cast, etc., and the film promises to be one of the best of this series of outdoor dramas to date.

Smiley Burnette, as usual, holds up the comedy end of the production and Carol Hughes is Gene's leading lady, with Joe Strauch, Jr., Frank Darien.

The Dead End Kids, famous for their unique work on stage and screen, are co-starred with Gladys George, Barton MacLane and The Little Tough Guys in Universal's "Hit the Road," which comes Friday to the Strand Theatre.

Each of the boys, Billy Halop, Huntz Hall, Bernard Punsley and Gabriel Dell appeared in the Broadway presentation of Sidney Kingsley's "Dead End," a play which aroused nation-wide comment when it was first offered in New York. Since then the boys, individually and collectively, have appeared in a number of screen plays.

Gladys George and Barton MacLane will be seen in the leading adult characterizations. Evelyn Ankers, Charles Lang, Shemp Howard and little Bobs Watson, have prominent roles.

Victims of Atrocity
"Hit the Road" tells the story of a group of boys, orphaned sons of gangsters slain in an atrocious underworld mass killing.

MONDAY & TUESDAY, JAN. 12-13
"Rage in Heaven" & "Roadshow"

Robert Montgomery and Ingrid Bergman, fascinating new Swedish actress, are co-starred in one of James Hilton's most exciting novels, "Rage in Heaven," coming Monday to the Strand Theatre for an engagement of two days.

Hilton's genius for brilliant characterization, revealed in "Goodbye Mr. Chips" and "Lost Horizon" reaches its peak in the psychological study of a weakling, married to a beautiful girl, whose insane and unjustified jealousy of his best friend drive him to attempt the "perfect crime."

Montgomery, in his most powerfully dramatic role since "Night Must Fall," plays Philip Monrell, a dashing, attractive young man with a queer mental quirk, the inability to believe in himself. He falls madly in love with, and marries, his mother's secretary, Stella Bergen, portrayed by Miss Bergman. But he tortures himself with the conviction that she really loves his friend, Ward Andrews, played by George Sanders, who is everything Philip would like to be.

As his madness grows on him, Philip deliberately throws Stella and Ward together, then plans a diabolically clever crime that will make Ward his victim in one of the most suspenseful, unusual climaxes ever screened.

When Hal Roach's comedy, "Road Show," is unreeled at the Strand Theatre on Monday, folks are going to notice a certain restraint on the part of John Hubbard in his love scene with Margaret Roach.

John Hubbard is a millionaire with a penchant for fun and Carol Landis is the owner of a carnival. It proved to be one of the gayest and liveliest pictures to come out of Hollywood this season. "Road Show" clicks as smart comedy because it is played by such stars as, Adolphe Menjou, Patsy Kelly, Geo. E. Stone, Chas. Butterworth. It has the added distinction of introducing for the first time on the screen the famous radio team of the charlotiers who make their screen debut singing a group of Hoagy Carmichael tunes written especially for the picture.

WEDNES. & THURS., JAN. 14-15
A murder mystery well-garnished with laugh lines and situations is a piece of film entertainment to treasure, and it looks very much like "The Night of January 16th," the new Paramount chuckle-mystery, which arrives Wednesday well worth it.

Housing My Bicycle
Yet, what dear souls they are! A neighbor instantly offered to house my bicycle—and at considerable inconvenience to herself. I never set eyes on her (till three months ago, but she came forward directly she heard of my difficulty. Then, hearing me barking and wheezing in the shed, a couple of days ago, she turns up with a bottle of emulsion and a pot of honey. All I know is that these things did not happen once upon a time. One's personal friends, of course, were always good and kind; but now the personal friends—many of them—have disappeared into the blue; yet the kindnesses still make their appearance. It is as if people are actively doing all they can to make life easier for the folk around them. And I have just been listening to a radio account of what you people over there are doing for the British children. There is something about all this which warms one's heart; something which makes life worth living—even in such times as these. And when you have said that you have said it all.

at the Strand Theatre, is just that kind of picture.

It stars handsome Robert Preston and lovely Ellen Drew, a pair who would seem to complement each other admirably, to the satisfaction of their legions of fans. Preston has been scoring personal successes picture after picture.

Miss Drew, one of the screen's best-looking enchantresses, has an acting ability that is outstanding, as she has proved in several recent performances. There comes to mind immediately the grand jobs she turned in in "The Mad Doctor," "The Monster and the Girl" and "Reaching for the Sun." In the latter, you will remember, Ellen demonstrated clearly that she knows how to handle a dramatic role interlarded with comedy.

"Our Wife," John M. Stahl's rollicking new production for Columbia, opens Wednesday at the Strand Theatre with Melvyn Douglas, Ruth Hussey and Ellen Drew starred in what has been hailed as the rowdiest, raciest battles of love since matrimonial merriment first hit the screen! John Hubbard and Charles Coburn are prominently featured in the supporting cast.

VANDORF

There was an attendance of ten at the annual ratepayers meeting for S.S. No. 2, which was held in the school house Tuesday evening, Dec. 30. Mr. George Richardson was appointed chairman of the meeting, and Lawrence Hennessey secretary. Mrs. VanNostrand, secretary-treasurer of the board, read the minutes of the last meeting, as well as the financial report, and inspector's reports. Mr. Wm. Mackay was returned to the office of trustee by unanimous vote. Mr. Ed. Ransom will continue as janitor of the school. Those present were well pleased with improvements made in our school last year.

Wesley Y.P.U. held their annual meeting for the election of officers for 1942, last Tuesday night, Dec. 30. The following were elected to office: Hon. pres., Mr. Westcott; president, Mabel Carr; vice-president, Jean White; sec.-treasurer, Mrs. Geo. E. Richardson; assistant secretary, Jim Thompson; pianist, Grant Morley; convener of fellowship, Clarence Mackay and Tom Clarke; missionary convener, Bill Bentley and Gordon Mackay; citizenship, Olive Bostwick and Harvey Wright; culture, Ralph Whately and Marion VanNostrand; recreation, Cecil Mackay, Delbert Dike and Irene Patten.

Mrs. Ralph Willis spent the week end with relatives in London and attended the funeral of her uncle, Mr. John Holman Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ledson and family of Streetsville visited Mr. and Mrs. Switzer for New Year's. Mr. Switzer returned home with them for a visit.

phere of the school with proper classrooms and equipment, instead of a military background, would make it much easier for all concerned.

Capt. Harden, regional secretary stated that he had been in the work for 15 months, and that the Canadian Legion paid the salaries of the different secretaries, the teachers, and where necessary the school janitors for extra work.

When the idea was started, the deputy ministers of education of all the provinces were called in to put the scheme on a proper footing. The course is given with no cost to the man at all, and a boy taking up this schooling if he wishes to continue on to university after the war, is allowed $3 a week for a single man and $13 a week for a married man. This is from the Dominion government.

When the classes first started, the army said, "so you're going to educate the troops, eh?" Now they are calling on us to undertake mass education, for they find it is a difficult thing for a man to handle our highly mechanized equipment without a proper knowledge of mathematics. There are 13,000 registered for schooling in District 12. The Legion provides the paper, pencils, etc., typewriters, and are willing to pay the teachers and caretakers. Such schools are established in the var-

President Comforts Committee, Newmarket Veterans' Assoc., Newmarket, Ontario.

Dear Sir:

I am certainly indebted to your organization for sending such a grand parcel. It arrived last week in excellent condition, but judging from various marks left by curious clerks, an alternative address might have been welcome.

The canned pork was a real treat and fortunately we have excellent facilities for preparing extra snacks. I gave the chef a portion of cheese in exchange for a loaf of bread, and then invited the members of our crew in for a feed. It was before a long flight and we were in a better mood than if we had gone to the mess for the usual lunch.

If we want to guarantee ourselves a second invitation to dinner, just inform the hostess you have a pound of Canadian butter, and your return visit is assured.

You who were soldiers in the last war will realize what enjoyment comes from the gifts themselves, but more will you remember the thought that prompted them being sent. It helps a lot to know you back home have not forgotten us. This time we're making no mistake. After victory, if there is anything left to take, "they've had it"—the swine!

Gratefully yours,

Bill Pipher.

Chairman Fred Chantler promised the full co-operation of the board.

The matter of a living allowance for the teachers and caretaker was discussed at length, but left over until the February meeting—the first meeting of the board of 1942. The controversy over the school auditorium being used for Red Cross dances, was settled amicably, and the offer of Mayor Dalos to provide uniformed police for the grounds and building was gratefully accepted. Alex. Belugin was named as a one-man committee to meet with the ladies and to ascertain their wishes.

Thanks a million for this Christmas parcel. I'm already enjoying them! This won't reach you by Christmas, or even New Year's, but I'm wishing you a happy holiday anyway. (Have one for me while you're at it).

Newmarket Veterans' Comfort Fund:

Dear Friends,—

I received the 300 cigarettes and thank you very much. Newmarket doesn't forget her boys over here. As you all know, the smokes are hard to get and they are dear as well. Thanking you again,

Yours truly,

G. R. A. R. Harman.

Dear Sirs:

Many thanks for the very lovely parcel received today. It certainly is a treat for us over here to see real butter and Canadian cheese, and I'm quite sure you know how well your parcel is appreciated.

Thanks again, and wishing you all the very best of luck. Also a very Merry Xmas and a happy and prosperous New Year.

Yours with thanks,

Don Lyall

Dear Sir:

This week I received a copy of "The Express-Herald" which was so kindly sent to me, and I wish to offer my most sincere thanks and gratefulness to those responsible.

Since my arrival in England I find it just a little lonesome not seeing the folks and I'm sure I can say the same for the other Newmarket boys in the regiment. Consequently, news from the home town is received with the deepest appreciation.

So thanks again and with it my wish that all may have a Merry Xmas and the Happiest New Year ever.

Yours respectfully,

Tpr. Munro.

Dear Sir:

Received your carton of three hundred cigarettes this afternoon, and sure was glad to get them. I appreciate them very much, and I think all of the boys which you and the veterans have sent cigs. to will sure appreciate them just as much as I do myself, and I am fine. Hoping you all are in the best of health, so I will thank you all a million for the lovely parcel of cigs.

Yours truly,

T. B. Legge.

Dear Veterans:

This is to let you know that I received your swell parcel last week. I was away on leave for the past week, so I didn't have the chance to write. The butter, cheese, meat and tea were swell and much appreciated. The weather is still cool and damp, but not too bad as yet.

We are being kept quite busy here at our place, and so the time goes very quickly. The cigarettes have been coming through very well, to which I must thank you all for sending. I would like to take this opportunity of wishing you and yours a very Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year.

Your sincerely,

Charlie Gordon.

Dear Friends:

Once again I am writing to thank you all for the parcel which I received. You say in your note that you hope that I can find use for the enclosed articles. Your choice of things that a soldier would like doesn't leave it hard for one to find a use for them.

The fact that I have received two such lovely parcels from you in the past year, and not having had the pleasure of meeting any of you personally, it makes me feel so very good. It shows that although we have been away from Hamilton almost two years now, we may be out of sight but not out of mind. You people have certainly not forgotten us, and it makes our long stay away from home a great deal easier.

It is plain to see from the way you pack your parcels that you are quite aware of the fact that a parcel from home is a highlight in a soldier's life. It is just the same as having part of your home put in a box and shipped over to you. You don't know whether to eat the things or keep them just to look at.

I certainly hope that this letter finds you all in the best of health, and may your Club prosper during the new year. So once more I'll say thanks on paper, until the time comes when I can thank you all personally.

Yours sincerely,

Ed. Pat Cunningham.

To Newmarket Veterans' Comfort Fund:

Just a few words of thanks for the carton of Macdonald's Exports which I received last night. Also for the swell box of eatables which I received the second of December. I have just returned from seven days' leave and of course both the eats and the smokes came in mighty handy.

Everything is quiet over here now. Well friends, thanks again for the parcel and smokes.

BIBLE AND SEA GAVE BRITAIN GLORY, AND CHURCHILL

ature, the absolute authority for our grammar, our syntax, our choice of words, and, from generation to generation, the fire within the common speech of peasant, merchant and aristocrat. The Bible has done more to give unity, greatness and character to England than any other force except the sea. Why? Not only by reason of what it contains, for other translations were made from the same original, but because the artist's instrument was made perfect. "Their Finest Hour"

So, then, if the Bible with its simple grandeur of language has created the glow that warms and enriches the common speech of common folk wherever English is spoken; if follows that Winston Churchill, who has diligently explored the riches of that language from his youth up and made them his own, not only thrills his listeners with his messages of faith and endurance, but with the peerless manner of their delivery, also. And if the Bible and the sea are two of the mightiest sources from which Britain draws her greatness and strength, then Churchill is indeed John Bull in the flesh, for he knows and loves them both.

Churchill's speeches have achieved grandeur in simple, unaffected eloquence; they have been an inspiration to the cause of Democracy in their supreme faith and courage. They have rippled with humor and burned with scorn. "Nazis" as he pronounces it, is made to embody all the peridy the human heart can conceive. But for us his greatest utterance came at the Empire's darkest hour, when France had collapsed, and it seemed, the whole hatred and fury of the German war machine was about to be concentrated on Britain. And Churchill spoke: "Let us therefore brace ourselves to our duties, and so bear ourselves that, if the British Empire and its Commonwealth last for a thousand years, men will still say, 'This was their finest hour'."

MORE steel is needed for more ships, more tanks, more planes, more guns, more munitions. Canada right now is faced with a shortage of iron and steel. During the first nine months of 1940, Canada produced about 1,500,000 tons of steel ingots; during the first nine months of 1941, she produced more than 1,750,000 tons of steel ingots; during the first nine months of 1942, she MUST produce over 2,000,000 tons of steel ingots. Steel is not made out of thin air. It is made out of iron ore, and pig iron, and scrap iron and steel. A mill that can turn out 200 tons in a given time using iron ore and pig iron can turn out 500 tons using pig iron and scrap metal. THIS IS WHERE YOU CAN HELP! Dig out every piece of scrap iron and steel you can lay your hands on! Get it to Canada's war industries through your Salvage Committee. DO IT NOW! No piece of scrap iron or steel is too small! EVERY POUND COUNTS!
